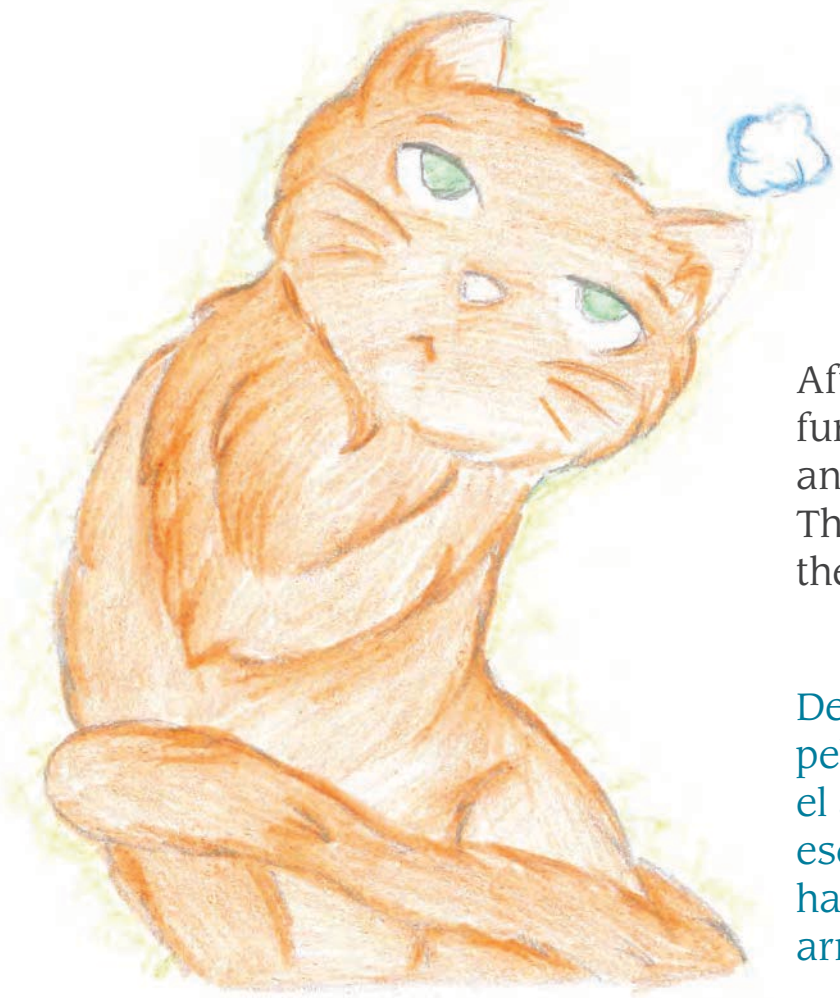
There was once a cat named Jack. He lived in a house by a lake called Wright. One day Jack started to take a walk along the lake.

Había una vez un gato llamado Jack. Él vivía en una casa cerca de un lago llamado Wright. Un día, Jack comenzó a dar un paseo por el lago.



After playing in the water, Jack's fur was oily from the gasoline and oil that had leaked from cars. There was also trash flowing into the storm drain!

Después de jugar en el agua, el pelaje de Jack estaba grasoso con el aceite y la gasolina que se había escapado de los autos. ¡También había basura que estaba siendo arrastrada al desagüe!

After reading Jack's Story I learned that...

1. ...when water falls from the sky as rain, snow, sleet or hail it is called _____.
2. ...condensation makes _____.
3. ...when rain moves downhill it is called _____.
4. ...when water soaks into the ground it is called _____.
5. ...oil can leak from cars and wash down into a _____.
6. ...we can keep our water clean by _____.

Answers: 1. precipitation • 2. clouds • 3. run-off • 4. infiltration • 5. storm drain • 6. picking up trash, fixing oil leaks, anything else?
